BDO

BDO are at the stage in their annual cycle where they are looking to build their class of trainee accountants for 2023 with them starting as a cohort in August. As always, they like to attract as many local candidates as possible and also like to have a mix of graduates and school leavers.

BDO will pay for study days and for extra exams that give one of the most prestigious professional qualifications in the world in just three years.

Training is designed and delivered to ensure it builds on-the-job training in a way which responds to the changing nature of the profession.

Where BDO may differ from other companies is that they don't force employees to take a certain number of exams at once or force them to pass first time, they take it at a pace tailored to the exam progress and the individual's needs.

Year 12

Is it too early for year 12 students to be thinking about university applications?

If students and parents are well informed about the process NOW, it means that you can put in the work required WHEN IT MATTERS. Especially for uber-competitive subjects like Medicine and STEM subjects at Oxbridge, as well as US applications.

There are some upcoming webinars for parents and guardians of students in Year 12. Please see the link below for more information. There are three mega-webinars coming up, helping to inform both parents and students about the application process for these tough subjects.
